As we, the members of the Class of 1966, terminate our careers at Sharon High School

We remember our achievements in scholarship and athletics

Our warm friendships and carefree moments

And our unified efforts to promote enthusiasm in class projects

And we are proud

Dedication

Mr. Gary W. Hall

We, the members of the class of 1966, have worked to produce a yearbook which would capture the fondest memories of our years at Sharon High School. To an individual whose influence has been of special value to us and who is responsible for having promoted the great "spirit of '66," we dedicate our yearbook — Mr. Gary W. Hall.

In his positions as athletic director, boys' physical education teacher, Boys' Varsity Club and Gymnastics Club advisor, Mr. Hall has served the entire student body for eleven years. Yet, the responsibilities which he assumes exceed the required duties of these positions. A patient and dedicated teacher, Mr. Hall takes a sincere personal interest in every student, recognizes individual ability and encourages mental and physical development. Because he maintains a top physical condition and abides by a high standard of fair play, he exemplifies the true sportsman.

Mr. William B. Riley

It is at this moment when we are approaching graduation that we pause for a moment to reflect upon the individuals who have directed us to this point. Along with our teachers and counselors, you, Mrs. Atkinson and Mr. Riley, as our class advisors have influenced our development and so, we, the members of the class of 1966, wish to sincerely thank you for your unselfish service to us. The success of all our class endeavors has been brought about because of your willingness to guide, to assist and to organize. During these brief four years, you have not only seen our class become a unified and fortified group, but also witnessed our development into mature individuals ready to assume the responsibilities of adulthood. Now that we have reached this milestone in our lives, we are able to move forward with the confidence that you have instilled within us.

Mrs. Ethel E. Atkinson

In Appreciation

This year, two members of the Sharon School Committee have resigned after having given many unselfish years of their time and effort to the betterment of our school system. Mrs. Albert Wilson, who has served since 1951, and Mr. Richard Hosmer, who has served since 1954, are individuals who truly represent the willingness of some to give of themselves in order to achieve a desired goal. In their work, Mrs. Wilson and Mr. Hosmer have made decisions which prove their concern for the education of Sharon's youth. They have also served on various school building committees and have participated in numerous civic projects. And so to you, Mrs. Wilson and Mr. Hosmer, for your help in making our school system one of which we are so proud, we, the members of the class of 1966, wish to extend our heartfelt thanks.

EDUCATORS

. . . motivating

with intelligence, dedication and understanding, have implanted within us
the seeds of intellectual curiosity that have promoted our independent study.
In the relationships we have shared with them,
their enthusiasms have become ours,
and our hopes have become theirs.
With patience and guidance, our educators have encouraged our aspirations and developed our abilities so that we are indeed able to fulfill the goals we have set for ourselves.

Administration

Mr. Dowd

The high quality of Sharon High School cannot be attributed solely to the enthusiastic student body, the excellent faculty and the modern facilities. Credit must also be given to those who effectively co-ordinate these elements. In their administrative capacities, Mr. Danielson, Mr. Dowd, and Mr. Roman have established and maintained the fine reputation of Sharon High School. Throughout the years, they have initiated policies which have benefited the entire school community and yet they have never overlooked the importance of the individual.

Guidance

Each year the student faces many perplexing problems which require experience and wisdom to reach sound solutions. The efforts of the Guidance Department, composed of Mr. Barrows, Miss Haley, Mr. Soule, and Mr. Konsavage, provide each student with beneficial advice so that he is equipped to handle his immediate and far-reaching problems. Their sensible decisions enable the student to formulate his plans regarding the selection of courses as well as his future career. The Guidance Department leads each student in the direction which will ultimately prove most beneficial for him in life.

Two Part Program Stresses

ENGLISH

From Beowulf to e. e. cummings and from the expository paragraph to the sonnet, the English Department interweaves appreciation for fine literature with development of effective written expression. Through a survey of significant prose and poetry, the students become aware of universal ideas as well as philosophical questions that man has asked throughout the ages. Also, through the study of composition, grammar and vocabulary, students are able to assimilate these elements and thus develop a useful form and style.

Are we all assembled?

. . . and I mean it!

I haven't dismissed you yet.

Written And Oral Communication

Thanks for coming.

You may go.

Ah . . . yup!

Now we're going to have fun and games.

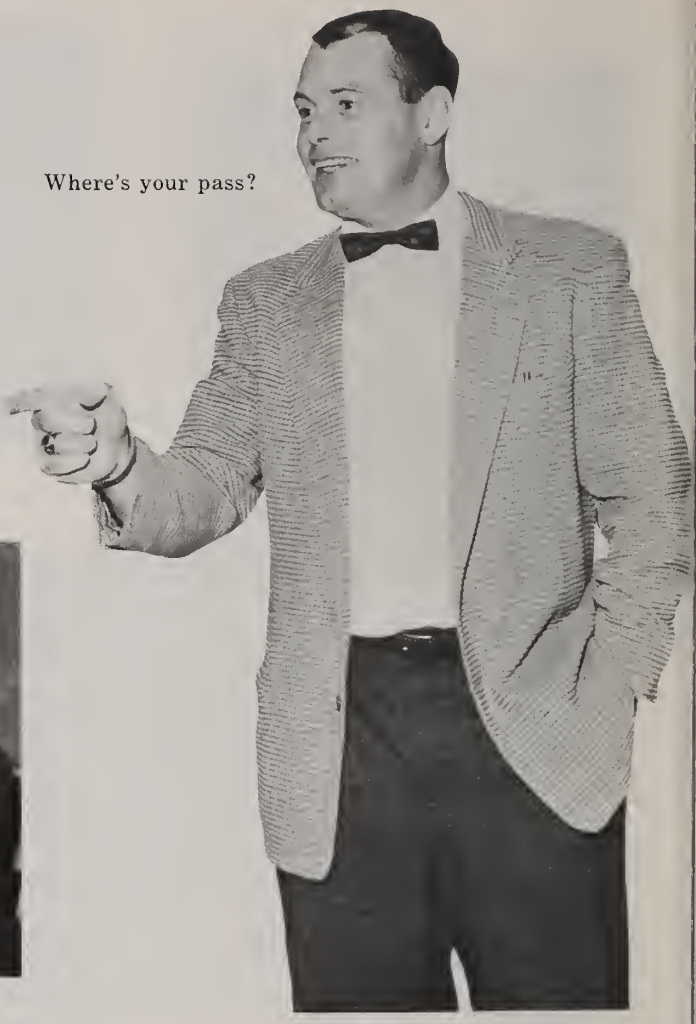
That drives me up a wall!

Alright, class.

Pearls of wisdom from my ruby lips.

HISTORY AND SOCIAL STUDIES

The adage, "history repeats itself," plays a significant part in the study of history. Thru an analysis of the past, the student can arrive at an understanding of the present domestic and international complexities. Moreover, patterns of events are such that one can reasonably predict the future, a future in which today's students will be active participants. Thus, the History Department, offering courses which prepare them for this participation, strives to produce citizens, informed and determined to make a better world.



Where's your pass?

That's not only a time-waster, but it wastes time.

Why didn't you do the reading?

Have I rattled any cages?

Hope For The Future

Yes, very definitely.

A Bridge To Understanding

STANDING: Mr. Roger Chappuis, Mr. Daniel Foley, Mr. Philippe deLacoste. SEATED: Miss Dorris Newton, Miss Dorothy Chase.

LANGUAGES

Veni, Vidi, Vinci — They come, they see, and they attempt to conquer the constructions, vocabulary, and skills of Latin. Miss Chase and Mr. Foley also devise enjoyable projects to bring their students closer to Roman life. Latin, the basis for all the other languages, assumes great importance in the school's curriculum.

From that first Bonjour all the way to complex grammatical constructions, the French Department offers an enlightening program covering the many aspects of the study of the language. To transmit the intricacies of this musical language, les professeurs de francais provide intensive classroom instruction, conversational application and laboratory practice.

Now, class, if you all get 100 today, no Cicero tonight.

The assignment for tomorrow is as follows . . .

MATHEMATICS

The high level of technology that we have reached today is due to the coincidence of man's logical mind with mathematics. Its application is essential for all facets of scientific research in our "computer age". In addition, mathematics develops the vital understanding of logical reasoning. According to ability, each student may pursue a program of challenging concepts from preparatory mathematics to trigonometry or calculus. In analyzing problems, the student strengthens his reasoning ability and so is able to apply the patterns he has learned to his later life.

The Logic Of Math . . .

Don't come in that back door.

Now for our next operation.

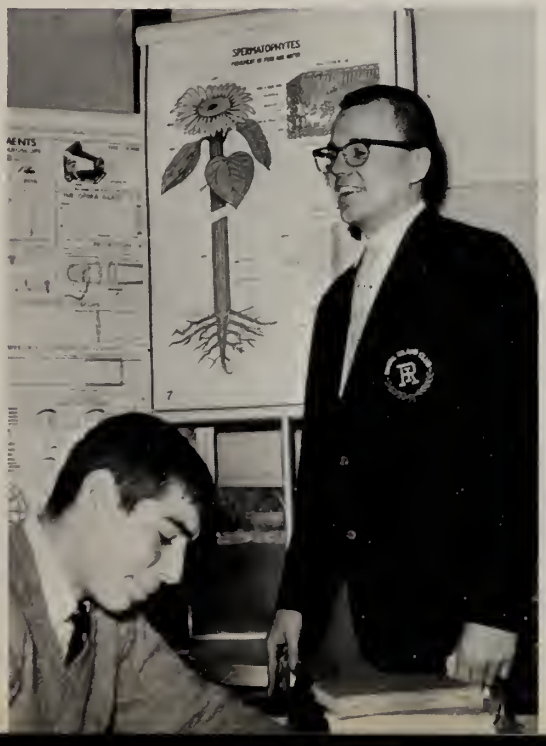
Keep quiet. Only ten more swings before the bell.

The Wonders Of Science

Let's not compete with the office.

Settle down!

What are you doing back there?



So to speak.

SCIENCE

The mysteries of life and of the universe create many profound questions for the student. To resolve some of these, the Science Department through lectures and lab offers an intensive program in the biological and physical sciences. Exploring biology, the student observes how the cell, the basic unit of life, accounts for so many complex organisms; exploring chemistry and physics, he examines the properties and the forces governing matter and energy.

STANDING: Mr. Nelson Rebello, Mr. William Konsavage. SEATED: Mrs. Ethel Atkinson, Mrs. Ruth Rivkin, Mrs. Miriam Eames.

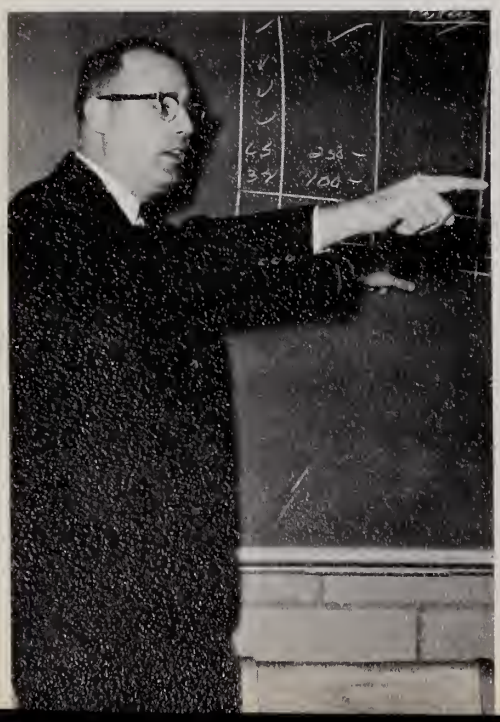
BUSINESS

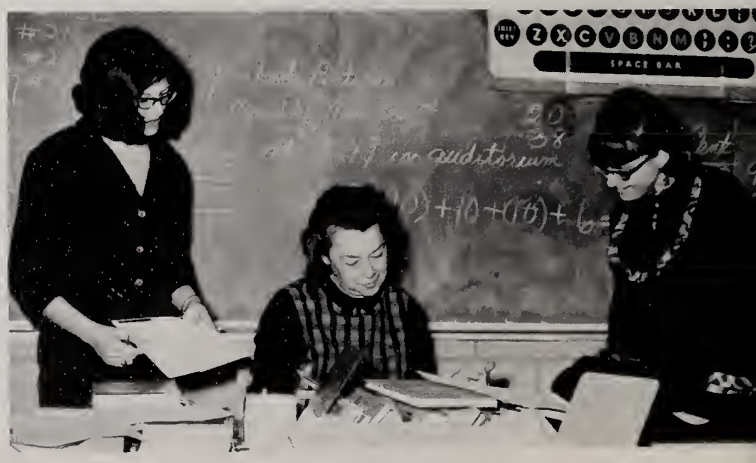
On the strictly practical side of the Sharon High School curricula is its Business Department. Commercial training in our school produces qualified students, prepared to take their place in the productive business world. Proficiency in applied mathematics, bookkeeping and business law enable the student to extend his training in areas such as accounting, while a sound background in typing and stenography provides the student with the skills necessary for secretarial work.

Business Talents Developed

You girls will never be secretaries.

Ignorance of the law is no excuse!





If you weren't erasing, how'd you get that hole in the paper?

PRACTICAL ARTS

Guiding the homemakers of tomorrow, Mrs. Eames offers an interesting program which experiments with many facets of home economics — from styling the fashions in vogue to creating the gourmet's delight.

The Industrial Arts Program enables boys to sharpen their manual skills in metal and wood working. Projects such as cabinets and hi-fi sets illustrate their fine craftsmanship.

In mechanical drawing classes, future engineers are able to learn the fundamentals of drafting and to acquire the ability to visualize three-dimensional objects.

Were you using your 2H pencil?

Projects Improve Practical Skills

Iron out your seams first.

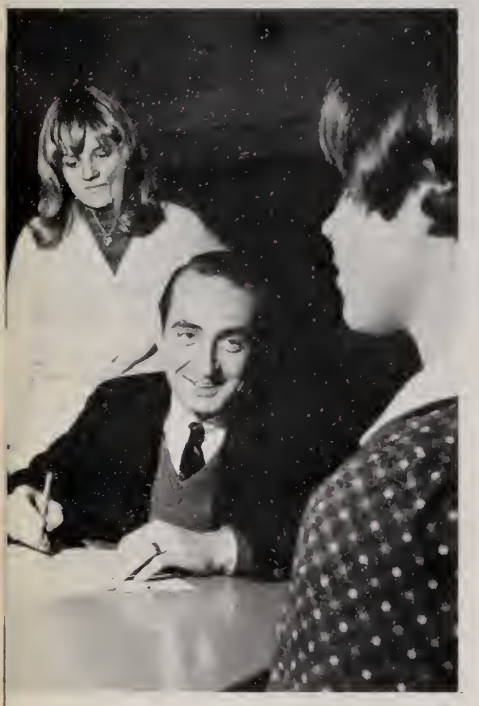
Now that's very important.

Fine Arts Department

ARTS

The newly innovated Fine Arts Department encourages interested students to gain knowledge of, and deepen their appreciation of art and music. Not only do they look and listen, but they are also instructed in the history, development, periods and techniques of artists. In this way, the student becomes aware of the political situations which prompted a particular genius to paint or to compose as he did and thus gains a thorough understanding of the history of man's intellectual development.

I'm waiting . . .



When does this period end?

Fine Arts students receive instruction in portraiture.

Keep it up, boys.

LIBRARY

Serving as a supplement to class instruction and text, the Sharon High School Library, under the direction of Miss Clark, functions as a place of learning in a relaxed yet scholarly atmosphere. Students have the use of a wide selection of books, magazines, newspapers, and records. By means of the reserve shelf, a unique service, students are given the opportunity to use pertinent resource material selected by the faculty.

Band And Ensemble

For the first time, music and rhythm have found their way into the classrooms of Sharon High School. As a new feature of the school's curriculum, the band and ensemble offer instruction for each student in musical techniques and also provide him with an opportunity for harmonic appreciation.

The ensemble of woodwinds and strings enables serious musicians to practice together under the leadership and experience of a professional, Mrs. Baughman.

The band, as a traditional part of our high school, performs at the annual talent show, at assemblies, and at the Spring Concert.

Encouraging Physical Fitness

PHYSICAL EDUCATION

The gymnasium is rarely considered a classroom; yet it is here that students, arrayed in bright blue or vivid maroon and gold uniforms, spend exhausting hours strengthening their bodies, developing athletic skills and learning good sportsmanship. Through an intensive program, each student gradually improves his physical fitness by developing a greater degree of endurance. Instructed by Mr. Hall and Miss Decas, the students apply the fundamentals of team sports such as basketball, field hockey, soccer, baseball, and volleyball in competitive team efforts. Gymnastics and field sports allow the student to attain a sense of personal accomplishment and pride in his ability. The Physical Education Department cultivates both the spirit of fair play and a respect for team cooperation.

O.K., let's have 40 burpees.

. . . fortified

with knowledge and maturity depart after twelve years of diverse experience. In our intellectual growth, we have formulated opinions and values which will last a lifetime, and so, too, memories of high school will always remain a part of us. Through the knowledge gained by past events, we will be able to overcome critical tests in the future.
And now in our roles as young adults,
we must venture into a world that has a place for each of us.
Yet, through the assimilation of the realities of yesterday, we are today fortified to accept the responsibilities of an independent career. Thus Sharon High School, we look back to you with pride and in your reflection we are able to look forward with hope.

Remembering The Past,

We sang in the sunshine

We laughed every day

We learned how to play

Then we went on our way

When we were good, we were very, very good,

. . . but when we were bad, we were horrid.

Alone,

in two's,

and together,

We Anticipate The Future

we ate,

we drank,

we were always merry.

For One

Don't let it be forgot
That once there was a spot
For one brief shining moment
That was known as Camelot.

"That's what the queen was doing that night."

Class officers lead Royal Procession.

Brief Shining Moment . . . Camelot

Camelot's queen, Patsy McIntosh, and her court.

Each evening from December to December
Before you drift asleep upon your cot
Think back on all the tales that you remember of Camelot.

The Seniors Present . . .

A group of people, so alive and so filled with confidence and hope, reached their goal —a successful senior play. On November 19, the production of "Lo and Behold" signified a genuine fulfillment for each character who had assumed a new identity during the preceding weeks of rehearsal.

Not bad. Like squattin' in a buck's lap.

I'm a Ramapo.

Its entertaining plot centered around the disastrous death of Milo Alcott, a sickly Nobel Prize winner, whose will bequeathed one third of his estate to maintain his house in memory of his spirit. To his dismay, however, Alcott's home became the scene of a romance between his former doctor and Daisy Durdle as well as a refuge for a strange assortment of dispossessed ghosts.

The performance of the play, after relentless hours of rehearsal under the direction of Mr. Newton and Laura Yellen and with the help of an able stage crew, was a rewarding and profitable experience for the Senior class. Capacity crowds enthusiastically confirmed its success.

Mr. Alcott, please don't be dead. I'll be thrown in the clink.

Put it on Platypus in the fifth.

Robert, listen to your intellect . . . listen to ME!

Lay yoah head back so you won't get a kink in it when he kisses yah, Sugah.

That it is difficult to produce a yearbook is certainly an understatement. We, on the various staffs who have toiled feverishly this past year, have come to realize how perplexing it is to write articles, how frustrating to rewrite them, how challenging to meet deadlines, yet how gratifying to see the finished product. Under the leadership of Roberta Franks, Editor-in-Chief, and with the help of Miss Reynolds, we have struggled with budgets and wrestled with problems in layout, typing, and art in order to present to you the culmination of our efforts — the 1966 MARSENGOLD.

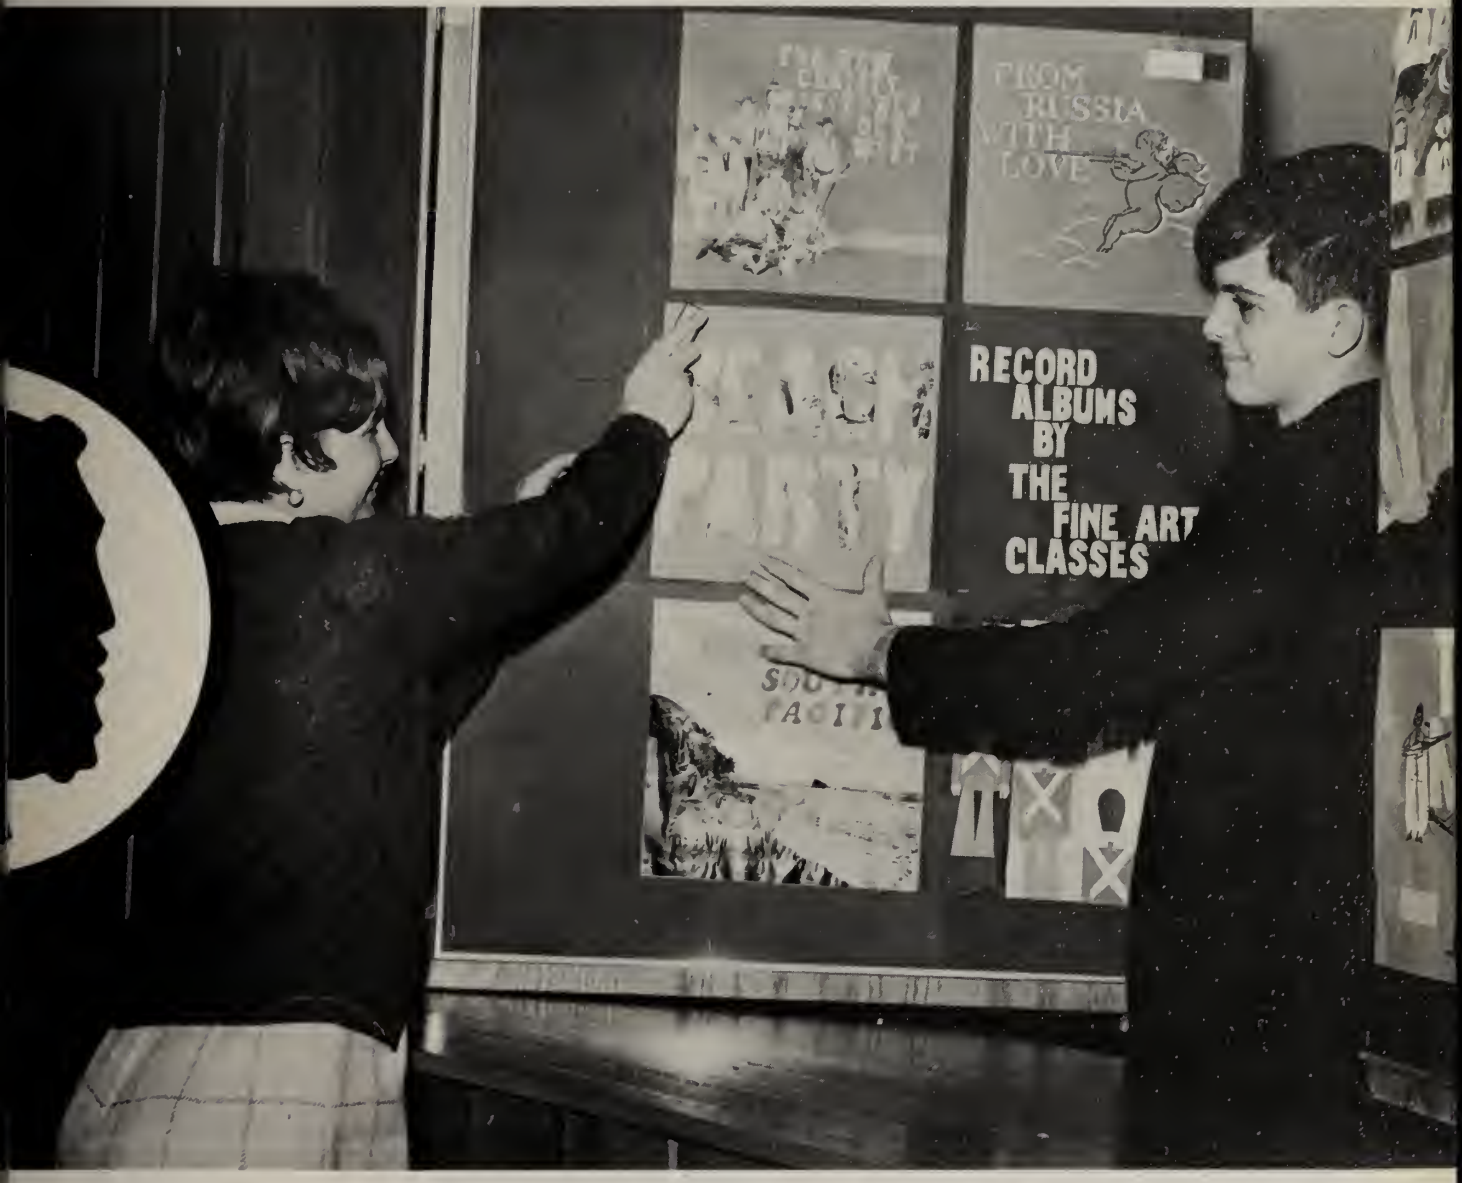
DIVERSITIES

. . . developed



initially through curiosity, are strengthened by perseverance and a determination to succeed.
In extracurricular pursuits,
the student may expand his interests,
while developing his talents.
Sharon High School offers each student an outlet for his creative energy and intellectual needs whether they be in drama or debate, folk-singing or philosophy.
To look back to a school of individuals is to be proud;
to look forward to further development is to be hopeful.

Is Vested In The People"

Embodying the ideals of democracy, Sharon High School's Student Council, which receives its authority from the student body, is composed of representatives from each homeroom and the vice-presidents of each class. This organization serves not only as an effective liason between the student body and the administration but also as an examiner of grievances. It raises large scholarships by operating the student supply shop, by furnishing candy at basketball games, and by sponsoring the traditional Twirp Twirl. Good Citizenship Awards are granted to outstanding students as a result of their active participation in school and activities. Thus, the student body, which delegates power to the Student Council, is generously compensated by the services this group renders in their best interests.

Good Citizenship Award recipients: Laura Yellen and Judy Callahan.

"Now that we have knives, let's keep 'em clean."

Consumer prices rise — Student Council profits.

National Honor Society "Taps"

Character, scholarship, leadership, and service—these four words symbolize the code of the National Honor Society, whose membership is the greatest honor a student can earn. Twenty-one juniors and six seniors who manifested these ideals were recognized at the "tapping" ceremony by admission into the Society this year. With the presentation of four awards, these attributes have been acknowledged in underclassmen. Under the direction of Mr. James, the Honor Society continued its tutoring service and sponsored a Smorgasbord to benefit the Student Scholarship Fund. Since eligibility for this group is based on an appraisal of those students who have maintained the required scholastic average, the National Honor Society serves as a standard of excellence for the student body.

"Congratulations!"

"Guess what, Mom? I got tapped!"

DEBATING CLUB

Resolved: Sharon High School's Debating Club has earned an admirable record of achievement. This contention requires neither definition of terms nor substantial evidence to prove its validity. For a decade, the Debating Club's outstanding performance has received state recognition in the South Shore League and at the State level. Because debating experience develops logical reasoning and improves public speaking ability, the Varsity, Intermediate, and Novice teams profit from their forensic activity.

By Strong Novice Team

This year the debaters, who were involved in the challenging field of labor and management relations, enjoyed many victories over their opponents and qualified for the State semi-finals. Guiding the persevering members in the art of debate, Mr. Foley and Mr. Riley schedule tournaments and coordinate all aspects of the club. After a student has earned the required number of points from his performance in either debate or speech events, he is granted membership into the National Forensic League.

Journalistic Talents

As the voice of the school community, the Eagle, Sharon High's local observer, strives to serve the students and faculty. Members of the staffs work to bring to the students the most accurate accounts of school life. The junior staff, composed of underclassmen, learns the basic skills of newspaper-writing so that upon promotion to the senior Eagle they will be proficient in the skills required for superior journalism.

Engages In Worthwhile Projects

JUNIOR RED CROSS

The Sharon Red Cross Youth Council, popularly known as the Junior Red Cross, exists only to serve. In addition to being given the opportunity to help others, members are acquainted with the practices of the National Red Cross. Miss Chase assists in the many projects which include membership to National Red Cross training camps, the annual Red Cross Drive, volunteer work at surrounding hospitals and the presentation of a traditional assembly.

AUDIO-VISUAL AIDS CLUB

The Audio-Visual Aids Club, under the supervision of Mr. Marcus, instructs its twenty-eight members in the operation of projectors, phonographs, tape recorders and lighting equipment. Members donate their free time and study halls to assist the faculty in educational demonstrations. Providing service in the classrooms, cafeteria and auditorium, members of this club make educational and public functions not only enjoyable, but also possible.

LIBRARY CLUB

Although many people believe that the work of a librarian consists solely in reading and ordering all the latest books, the members of the Library Club soon realize that the duties are far greater. After being instructed in library procedure, the members devote two free periods each week to cataloging books, magazines and newspapers. In addition, they aid Miss Clark by assuming desk duties and by planning the library's seasonal displays and bulletin boards. While serving the school, they are receiving fine practical experience in a career area.

The Thinking Man's Game

CHESS CLUB

On sixty-four squares the Middle Ages come alive in Lecture Hall A. This medieval rivalry—the capturing of kings, queens, and bishops—comprises the challenging game of chess. The Sharon High School Chess Club offers the opportunity for sharp-minded students to combine skills and memory in an intellectual experience. Advising this three-year old group, Mr. Downing trains chess players to analyze difficult moves, to devise successful strategem, and, eventually, to reach their goal—CHECKMATE.

Formulating Ideas Of Man's Existence

Life for the student is a continuous flow of ideas which can be used in a search for answers of the truth in mankind and in a striving toward a goal of perfection.

The Classical Reading Club accepts the challenge to search for truth and perfection by presenting the student with ideas of life, with thoughts of those who have lived, and with questions of existence. It asks him to question and to analyze. Eventually, from a search beginning with discussion, club members gain awareness.

FUTURE TEACHERS OF AMERICA CLUB

The Anne Sullivan Chapter of the Future Teachers of America Club enables aspiring students to familiarize themselves with the wide scope of the teaching profession as well as to gain satisfaction in serving the school and the community. One of the largest school organizations, this club's activities range from providing teacher aids to holding an induction tea, and from observing elementary teaching to subscribing to seasonal theatre tickets. Aside from major projects, bi-month-

Enthusiastic Students Enjoy

Mademoiselle Newton et Monsieur de Lacoste provide students with the next best substitute for a deluxe trip to France. By traveling only a few short steps, one can feel the spirit of France in the French Club. In the two levels of the club, both beginning and advanced French students are able to gain an insight into the French way of life through entertaining records, informative films, and traditional games. Regardless of the activity, the members increase their knowledge of the French language at each meeting by attempting to conduct them in French.

Who said that Latin is a dead language? While gaining enriching experience, members of the Junior Classical League prove that Latin and its cultural background can come alive in Sharon High School. Feasting at a Roman banquet, bidding for a slave of your very own, modeling the latest style in togas, or solving tricky Latin crossword puzzles, students realize that Rome can be rebuilt every other Friday morning. Connecting their knowledge of Latin with an appreciation of its ancient tradition, each member agrees that the study of Latin can be a lively and worthwhile endeavor.

Folk Song Club

The Folk Song Club brings to folk music enthusiasts of Sharon the opportunity to enjoy together a hobby which is both culturally and aesthetically enriching. Meeting every other week, the club attempts to acquaint its members with the many phases of folk music by combining programs of guitar-playing and singing with ones of discussion of contemporary and traditional works and trends. Guest performers and recordings supplement club programs. A subscription to the magazine, Sing-Out!, and the purchase of many excellent recordings, which are available in the school library, further acquaint the club's members with the various aspects of folk music. Among its many activities this year, the club intends to attend a concert and, perhaps, arrange a hootenanny.

Classical Music Appreciation Club

It has been brought to our attention that one day each week the strange harmony of violins, flutes, clarinets, trumpets, and other orchestral instruments issues forth from 208 and permeates the entire wing 2 area. Non, the instructor within is not organizing his own combo, "Sing Along with Your Friendly Neighborhood French Teacher," in hopes of someday appearing on the Ed Sullivan Show. Rather, a group of students, after a long day's work have come to spend a leisurely hour, listening to and commenting on the works of past masters — all this liberally sprinkled with Monsieur Chappuis' humor.

MATH CLUB

Great enthusiasm in the Math Club has been demonstrated by the student body this year. Under the expert direction of Mrs. Reardon, members are introduced to advanced forms of problem solving and complex mathematical puzzles. In this manner, club members are prepared for various competitive math exams offered during the school year. Because the club goes beyond classroom mathematics, it is especially appealing to those students who are primarily interested in the field.

acquire the fundamental tools that will give direction to their lives.
Each year the student grasps a firmer scholastic understanding, while at the same time he forms ideals to mold his character.
As the student reaches greater maturity,
he is able to assimilate the numerous facts, theorems, and principals and eventually to become aware of their value.
Sharon High School offers him the training that will build an enduring foundation on which he can further expand and consolidate his knowledge.

"Pass the can of elbow grease!"

"Look girls, do we wear our sweaters on Mondays or Fridays?"

So we spilled a couple....

GIRLS' VARSITY CLUB

A group of girls united by school spirit, sportsmanship, and service form the Girls' Varsity Club. Its members have earned at least one varsity or two junior varsity letters and seek to benefit the school and the community through activities such as selling book covers before school, selling refreshments at games, and sponsoring an annual car wash. In this way, the girls raise money for the scholarship fund. This year they were also able to purchase a projector for the physical education department. While promoting enthusiasm, the members make decorations for the pep rallies, referee at intramurals, and line the hockey field. In recognition of their efforts, senior girls who have earned enough points are presented with the traditional letter sweater.

"No, we are not going to raid the boys' locker room after the game!"

Boys' Varsity Club Offers

The boys in the Varsity Club have more to be proud of than their maroon and gold jackets. Unlike the teams who go out for sports, this group of boys goes out for service. It provides transportation to away games, sponsors pep rallies, and sells tickets at the door. It also lives up to its goal of service to the students by contributing to the Scholarship Fund moneys earned through the annual cake sale and the first Varsity-sponsored dance. The Boys' Varsity Club is an intricate part of the sports program, providing a link between the players and their avid fans.

"Things go better with Coke."

Vitality, Spirit . . .

The 1965-1966 sports season at Sharon High School was highlighted by the enthusiastic squad of cheerleaders. Nine regulars and three substitutes comprised a group of energetic girls who encouraged the J. V. and the Varsity basketball team to victory. Exhibiting those fine qualities of vitality, dignity and poise, the cheerleaders were especially successful this year in their efforts to involve spectators in organized, effective cheers. As they perfected the old cheers and introduced several new ones, the cheerleaders added a spirit and freshness which will never be forgotten.

As we, the members of the Class of 1966,

Anticipate the coming years of our lives

We assume responsibilities to our community

and our country

We labor to maintain democracy and freedom

We prepare for advancements and peace among men

And we hope
